Estimable ladies with good intentions ask one thousand political candidates: "Will you support the reduction of armaments and advocate practical substitutes for war?" The candidates might reply: "Dear lady, your esteemed and contents told, I'll be delighted to advocate 'practical substitutes for war' if you will tell me what they ARE and prove that they ARE practical. "I confess that I don't think you can substitute a game of 'vase-around-a-cray' for war with any little power and I don't think a nice idea on such a thing would keep Hitler, Stalin, or Mussolini from starting a war if he wanted one. "I feel you present a 'practical substitute for war' that will work. I shall vote to increase United States armaments under this country to sufficiently powerful in the air and under the water to destroy the cities, the populations and the shipping of any nation on earth."

"Weeping, mourning peasants line the way as King Alexander's body is taken to the city of Zagreb. Reading that you wonder what those peasants, slaving their lives away for the privilege of paying taxes, imagine that their King ever did for them except allow them to support him in luxury. Victim of a bloodstained throne, the terrible of Russia prayed for that monstrous tyrant as they and under torture by his orders. And peasants of France, more miserable of the French revolution, that was to free them from their kings and make them owners of the soil of France, to which they had been attached as miserable serfs. With the death of Raymond Poincaré, France is a noble patriot and great statesman. For three years minister of France, he was twice President of the French Republic. All of France knows that Poincaré, a devoted patriot, one of the most distinguished intellectual families of France, died of strain and overwork, to which he completely submitted in the service of his country. Of Poincaré, now dead, it may be said that no party could do him credit for his popularity, devoting all his intelligence and high principles to France, as if that no breath of life was ever blown into his name. His moral and intellectual integrity were above reproach. The driver of a truck in Kentucky says he saw Mrs. Stoll, kidnapped, alive, bound and gagged in an automobile. The kidnappers pointed a pistol at the driver, who went about his business. The driver will not be generally criticized for doing no better, if he recognized among men that, when another has "the drop" on you, you are justified in quitting. The theory would not hold with thousands of women. Any one of them would have jumped into that car, taking the risk of a bullet in an effort to free the woman. Women are much braver than men, on the average. For proof of it, look at the waves of 1300 women threatening miners threatening to commit mass suicide at the belated coal mine in Hungary. All the energy of troops at the mouth of the mine was needed to keep back the waves of women, determined to go down with the few thousand miners and children. That is "the way women are."

Sir Arthur Schuster, one of Britain's ablest mathematical physicists, is dead at 83. Born in Frankfurt, a German, of the Jewish race, he chose to live and work in England for many years. Had he stayed in Germany, he probably would have been driven out in his old age. Sir Arthur king conferred knighthood on him, making him Sir Arthur Schuster, in appreciation of his services to science in Britain. England is a country that is not a country that appreciates its own greatness. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation tells those that Continued on Page 4, Column 4

2. TROOP IN BROOKLYN

Girl Feels Gun in Side While Bandits Rob

Three armed bandits disguised as plumbers raided the treasurer's office in Brooklyn City Hall today. They escaped with the city payroll funds of $12,742 after disarming a policeman and threatening three girl clerks with death. In their wild dash from the scene their car collided with another, injuring one person. Two airplanes joined in a spectacular search for the robbers' machine, which headed toward Boston but may be hidden in wooded roads surrounding Brooklyn. All Brooklyn police, three carloads of state troopers and the Boston cruising cars, warned by radio, joined in the hunt. The robbery, boldest in the city's history and the first gun raid on municipal funds in Massachusetts in recent years, thrust downtown Brooklyn into an uproar.

After drinking a disinfectant because of a quarrel with a man, according to police, Miss Angelica Goodall, 27, Winthrop school teacher, is at Lawrence General Hospital where it is believed she will recover. Police said Miss Goodall was on an automobile ride in her car with Joseph Berger, 27, of Washington street, Haverhill, when an argument broke out. They quoted Berger in a statement that he suddenly started to drive at Winthrop avenue and South street, where he was stopped by police. She reached for a handkerchief in which the bottle of disinfectant was secured. Berger hurried with the girl to the office of Dr. Herbert F. Fenner, small sedan, parked near the school street entrance. The treasurer's office is on the first floor and adjoining it is the office of City Auditor Charles Swanson, which is connected with the treasurer's office by an inner door. Two of the gunmen, carrying a sack of the type in which plumbers are supposed to forget their tools. Continued on Page 4, Column 3

Stoll Believes Wife Safe; Hunt 2 Men

By Associated Press Louisville, Ky., Oct. 16.—Belief that Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, kidnap victim, was safe and would be returned soon became more apparent today among friends of the family. The Louisville friend said it had "positive information" that the young society matron was alive late yesterday. It added the case was so near a solution that it was expected she would be freed or returned within 24 hours. The family maintained its position of making no announcements. Mrs. Y. Stoll, the husband, who has maintained an unusual watchfulness over his wife's whereabouts, was seen yesterday afternoon to tell his wife had been stolen and $20,000 ransom demanded. He expressed anxiety to demand, talked to reporters briefly during the forenoon. It was a chance interview on his lawn. He said: "There isn't any news, but we are a little more hopeful. We don't want the kidnappers caught. We're not interested in that. We only want Alice back."

TARR ATTACKER FACES TESTS

Gloucester, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Helen D. Currier, 44, of Rockport, was held without bail in district court today on a charge of shooting her son, Frederick H. Tarr, Jr., court-appointed custodian of her divorced husband's income. Judge William Hatch ordered a mental examination in court again tomorrow.

Mrs. Currier, mother of two girls, one of them a Boston stenographer, pleaded not guilty. Police charged her with intent to murder Tarr who suffered a slight wound in the arm when she allegedly fired point blank at him in his Maine street office yesterday.

Police said the reason for the shooting was a controversy with Tarr over the estate of her divorced husband, now an inmate of the State Hospital at Bridgewater.

Mrs. Currier, when granted a divorce from her husband was decreed alimony of $10 a week from her husband's income. But that income, deriving solely from his insurance of $58.65 a month, must first go toward paying for his care at Danvers State Hospital, then toward the taxes and upkeep of his house, in which Mrs. Currier was living.

1 Shot as Coast Guards Ambush Alky Load

Portland, Me., Oct. 15.—Ambushing an alcohol-laden truck and a coupe convoy containing three men, a coast guard detail today riddled the coupe with machine gun bullets, shot the driver and caused the truck driver to ditch his load.

With blood streaming down his face, to seek his clothes, Anthony Casale, 23, of Middle street, continued for 20 miles toward Portland, riding on two wheels rim, before he was captured at Martin's Point Bridge.

Arrested in the coupe with Casale were his two brothers, Samuel Casale, 19, also of Middle street, and Matthew Casale, 23, of Vermont street.

Meanwhile, the alcohol truck loaded with 1000 gallons, declared by the coast guards to be consigned to bootleggers in Portland and Boston, had caught fire after being ditched, with both truck and load destroyed.

In the excitement and confusion the truck driver and a man riding with him escaped.

Lieutenant-Commander Robert Jewell of the coast guard cut Kinkadee left the sea with a crew early today and took to the land after receiving information of the 1000-gallon load started for Portland and Boston.

On the road between Brunswick and Freeport, 20 miles northeast of Portland, the coastguards ambushed the coupe and truck.

1200 "SUICIDE STRIKERS" OUT

By Associated Press
Pena, Hungary, Oct. 15.—Twelve hundred miners, 100 of them only half-conscious, came back from the black depths of the mines today victorious in their "suicide strike."

Not too soon did the men bring to a close their self-imposed imprisonment. The semi-conscious men were suffering from gas poisoning and exposure after 110 hours in the pits.

Even the more robust were haggard, but joyful.

The men will receive a winter bonus of $2 each and, instead of an 8 per cent wage cut, a Christmas bonus of the same amount.

There were dramatic scenes as the miners reached the pit mouth to be welcomed by wives and children who had waited long days for the moment.

Police denied any men perished in the pits.

Blinking in the early morning sunlight, the half-starved men staggered from the mouth of the mine into the arms of overjoyed wives who were waiting, as they have been for five days, with food.

Those who were able to rave easily but many could not accept food.

Only a few hours before the settlement, the desperate miners threatened to shoot General János Esterházy, member of parliament who tried to mediate with them.

After one trip down, he was warned not to make another or "you won't return."

Reprieve Denied Dillinger Killer

Columbus, O., Oct. 15 (AP)—Harry Pierpon's last hope of escaping the electric chair was blasted today when Governor George White refused his executive clemency.

The Dillinger gangster had applied for commutation of the death sentence imposed upon him for the killing of Sheriff Jess Barker at Lima, O., when John Dillinger, then held as a bank robbery suspect, was freed a year ago.

Turner, Pangborn at Mildenhall

Mildenhall, Alderome, Eng., Oct. 15 (AP)—Col. Ronald Turner and Clyde Pangborn, in their big twin-engine aircraft, were off to a fine landing here today despite a wind of practically gale force and turbulent storm which swept across the airframe.

They were reporting that the plane was to start Saturday in the 23,000-mile England-to-Australia air race, the world's longest.

and we're still hopeful she will be returned to us safely."

NO KIDNAP TEAM
Stoll said he has personally answered all telephone calls for the home since the day of the abduction. In the hope a contact could be made with the kidnapers.

Explaining that no one was allowed on the premises, Stoll said: "We are trying to keep the source absolutely isolated. The kidnapers will not think we are trying to trap him."

The attitude of the Stoll and Speed families at times during the long suspense had approached despair.

Mrs. Stoll was ill when slugged on the head and taken from her home, and fears had been expressed that she might not survive the ordeal.

A plea was broadcast last week that she be freed "before it is too late." The family has issued no statement since last Saturday.

Missing Belmont Money Baffles Probers

Puzzled over where the money could have gone, friends of the late Guy L. Weymouth, town treasurer of Belmont, painted him today as a man with no vices, devoted to his work and to his home as a 400 ft.

Weymouth's mode of living, they said, gave no indication as to how he could have spent, over and above his $400 salary and his fees as conservator and administrator, anywhere near the $220,000 that the shortage in his accounts has now reached.

Before the audit of his accounts is completed, the shortage may go as high as $300,000, town officials declared today, there being "certain items in question, the exact status of which has not yet been ascertained."

Weymouth was depicted today by his friends as a man who worked hard for the town all day, even promised her that during his lifetime she would remain at home.

He said, by the way, he employed a nurse to care for her and at night he took over this task himself, although he himself was suffering from an incurable ailment.

Since his death, however, Mrs. Weymouth has been placed in an institution and knows nothing of the shortage in her late husband's accounts.

According to the death certificate, Weymouth died last May 19 of coronary thrombosis, a heart affliction, at the Palmer Memorial Hospital. He was born in Green, Me., 53 years ago, and is buried there. For 20 years he had lived in Belmont and for 12 years had been treasurer of the town.

Weymouth, who was bonded for $5,000, survived an audit of his books and accounts in 1928 and another in 1931, and his accounts would have survived the 1934 audit had it not been for an auditor's finding of a discrepancy in the last item examined.

This led to a backcheck, and other discrepancies began to come to light.

State Cash to Wed

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 16.—State subsidizes marriages of the highly intelligent to produce a race of super-men were proposed by Dr. Eugene L. Snow, New York psychiatrist, here to address the convention of the New York State Nurses Association.

By subsidizing marriage I mean the state should put up the money. The government subsidizes the farmers and some of their products, why not finance the nation's most important institution, the housewife?

Only those with an intelligence quotient of 80 or more, which is well above the average, he said, should be married on government funds.

New York, Oct. 16.—Prince Gottfried Zu Hohenlohe-Langenburg came across on the express line Bremen here to champion the honor of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt and help restore her child, Gloria, to her, Henry Hays Morgan, Jr., brother of Mrs. Vanderbilt, ex-Bremer when he learned of the prince's arrival.

"Now, isn't that a splendid sporting thing to do? Like a knight of old, he has sped to rescue a woman in distress. I'm proud to call him friend."

Over before the line docked, the prince made it plain that he looked on Mrs. Vanderbilt as the exemplar of maternal virtue who had not hesitated to sacrifice her own happiness for her child. He scoffed at the charges made against the young mother, saying:

"I don't know the inside of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's effort to obtain Mrs. Vanderbilt's child. But there must be dirty work behind it."

Concerning the testimony of Emma Keisch, the child's nurse that she saw him and Mrs. Vanderbilt in pajamas in Mrs. Vanderbilt's boudoir and that she was crying, the prince said:

"Where was Mr. Keisch? Ah, in Biarritz everyone always wears either a bathing suit or pajamas—even the nurse—and Mrs. Vanderbilt was frequently in tears."

"Mrs. Vanderbilt's whole life centers in Gloria, and she always was a good mother. It was for Gloria that she broke our engagement."

Concerning Mrs. Morgan, mother of Mrs. Vanderbilt, he said:

"She was always praising Mrs. Vanderbilt and I believe she urged her to break our engagement."

Prince Hohenlohe professed complete faith in his father-in-law and friendship for Mrs. Vanderbilt. Before Supreme Court Justice Caron, several witnesses testified Monday. Mrs. Vanderbilt was accompanied to court by her sisters, Lady Purves and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, and her brother, Charles Ziegler, the Vanderbilt butler; Thomas B. Gilchrist, co-guardian of Gloria, and Dr. William St. Lawrence testified for Mrs. Whitney's claims.

SHUSH!
Says Winchester

Mill wagers will tip toes through Winchester hereafter, in order not to awaken tired businessmen and deprecate property values.

A unanimous decision to accept a voluntary agreement for silent operation was made by the 17 mill distributors, in the community, at a meeting under the direction of Henry J. Maguire, chairman of selection.

The reign of quiet will start officially on November 1. Evidence was brought forth showing the effect of noise on horse and temperament.

Daphne Muir is Only 40 Her New Eyes are 69 and 70 'MIRACLE' OF SURGERY

Through one eye that is 70 years old and another that is 69, Daphne Muir, English novelist, who is only slightly over 40, saw Boston today on a sightseeing tour.

A marvelous tribute to modern surgery and the only person in the world who has regained sight of both eyes after total blindness, Miss Muir first was a clinic subject at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary today, with 50 of the leading eye doctors attending the congress of the American College of Surgeons as "students."

The amazing operation, which restored the novelist's sight was explained to the other 50 doctors by Dr. F. H. Verhoff of Monmouth street, Brookline, in a lecture which lasted an hour, during which Miss Muir was the smiling subject.

DOCTOR IN NEW TRY

Afterward she toured Boston and returned to the Hotel Statler, where she revealed that Dr. Tudor Thomas, celebrated eye surgeon of Cardiff, Wales, who restored her sight, is now working on a man who has been totally blind for a long time that he has never seen an automobile.

First of the delicate operations, she said, was performed on this patient just before she entered and to visit here and be present at the surgeon's congress, and Dr. Thomas has high hopes that this sight restoration will be successful.

So successful has her own case, she revealed, that she does not even wear glasses for reading. The sight has been completely restored, she said. "Things did seem misty at first, but now I wear dark glasses only on exceptionally bright days, and then only outside."

Daphne declared she does not know the identities of the persons whose eye lenses had been taken for grafting in place of her own corneas.

"All I know is that one of my eyes is 70 years old," she said, "and the other is 69 years old. Therefore, I am getting an old-fashioned viewpoint of things."

From the Statler, Miss Muir left for Plymouth with Sir Harold and Lady Giles of London. They are visiting friends on the coast, but shortly will motor to New York, going by way of the Berkshires, before Daphne wishes to view the colorful autumn foliage.

For nine years the novelist was totally blind, but during that time she was author of five novels.

'DADDY'S' WIFE LOSES RICHES BUT SHARES UNDER THE LAW

"Peaches" Browning

"Peaches" Browning, wife of the late Edward W. Browning, is shown in a recent picture. She is the winner of five other prizes, the story said.

By International News Service
New York, Oct. 16.—The late Edward W. (Daddy) Browning disinherited his widow, "Peaches" Browning, in his last will and testament, but left Dorothy "Sunshine" Hood $25,000 a year for life, the Evening Journal said in an exclusive story today.

Out of his $10,000,000 estate, the Journal added, Browning also left a prize of $250 a year to be paid to the man or woman who does the utmost annually to improve the morals of the world.

Browning, who was buried yesterday, appointed Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia University head, as one of the trustees of what is to be known as the Edward W. Browning Foundation, to decide this and the winners of five other prizes, the story said.

Aids Lame Children

In addition, the Journal said, Browning decreed that a trust of $20,000 be established for the treatment of crippled children. According to the story, the will was read to relatives and other beneficiaries a few hours after the funeral but will not be filed for several days.

There was a codicil dated Aug. 26, 1930, disinheriting Peaches, was quoted by the Journal as follows:

"Whereas, I have inherited, in his will, the Journal added, her from any of the benefits of my estate, except such interest as the law provides for her."

Peaches, however, will receive direct benefit due her as Browning's widow. By settlement, several years ago she was given first call on unincorporated Browning real estate, then valued at $3,000,000. She is entitled to one-third of the income from this although, according to reports, the property has depreciated to a value of about $500,000.

Browning also cut off his first wife, Nellie Adele Lowen Browning, from all income, except an annuity of $5000 from a trust he set up for her in lieu of dower at the time of her divorce, the Journal said.

ransom payment, which said: "Cross the street and walk to the next corner."

AN INDIVIDUAL "X"

Osborn said this note as well as the original ransom note contained the letter "X" written as that appears to be a double "E" for "N." He added:

"The same characteristic appears on exhibits 2 and 3 in the word 'Bronx,' a most peculiar and individual characteristic."

Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, of New Jersey, told Justice Hammer that the Lindbergh ransom note, which he claimed the state had proved were written by Hauptmann, "are an admission and a confession on the part of Hauptmann that he was in the baby's room the night of the kidnapping."

Wilentz dramatically read excerpts from the ransom notes, including one which asked "Why did you ignore our letter we left in your room?" Another quotation was "Now we will send you the sleeping suit from the baby," and third asked, "Did you send the little package to Mr. Lindbergh? It contains the sleeping suit from the baby."

"WRITING IS SAME"

The last note, the attorney-general contended, was an "admission" from Hauptmann that he had taken the sleeping suit from the Lindbergh baby.

In testifying that Hauptmann allegedly had written the ransom notes, Osborn said he had made a comparison of the handwriting in these with exhibits "B" and "C," which were admitted specimens of Hauptmann's handwriting.

The first note contained the original demand for ransom.

In referring to the note marked "H" with the quotation "Why did you ignore our letter which we left in the room?" Wilentz testified that the writer of this note was the defendant—as we allege, left the note.

Wilentz said:

These notes, written by Hauptmann, we have proved are an admission and confession on the part of Hauptmann that he had taken the sleeping suit from the Lindbergh baby the night of the kidnapping.

HAUPTMANN TALKS

Hauptmann entered the courtroom five minutes before 12 o'clock and took a seat at the counsel table. He wore a brown suit as did some blue polka-dot tie he had on yesterday. As soon as he was seated he started conversing with his counsel.

Mr. Hauptmann, wife of the prisoner, sat in the second row of spectators. She wore a brown hat, brown coat and black dress. She spoke animatedly with some companion and nodded her head emphatically several times.

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney James Fawcett, Osborn said that the writing for more than the writers "suspected" of writing the Lindbergh ransom notes were submitted to him and his son during the last two years. He said:

"We made oral reports on these writings and we discussed all of them."

Osborn said he showed the first ransom note found in the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnapping. He told Fawcett that he had made a report on this note to Col. H. N. Nordstrom, superintendent of the New Jersey State Prison, a few weeks after the kidnapping.

IN LATIN SCRIPT

He said the writing was that of a person who learned to write first in German. It was written, Osborn continued by a writer who was "somewhat literate." The writer was one who wrote what is known as the Latin script in an imperfect way. Osborn continued, Osborn said:

"I called attention to various expressions which would serve to identify the writer. At that time there were no suspected writers, although later, of course, there were many of them."

Fawcett asked whether the note indicated to Osborn the occupation of the writer. Osborn replied:

"I gave no opinion as to the occupation."

He acknowledged there were certain peculiarities in the note. There were, he said, inconsistencies. In one, "which is the evidence of disguise."

Osborn said that the writing, summed up, was highly individual. This individuality was expressed, he said, by the use of capital letters, by arrangements by abbreviations, and also by certain repetitions of words. He said, in his opinion, Osborn said, was based on these qualities and characteristics.

Hauptmann, Icy Calm, Begins Legal Battle for Life

With his own life as the stake to be posted eventually, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged kidnaper and slayer of the Lindbergh child, has the outward aspect of a steel-nerved gambler as he appears—haggard but self-controlled—in New Jersey supreme court to fight against extradition to New Jersey where he has been indicted for murder. Hauptmann is indicated by the arrow. Directly in front of him, holding papers in his hand, is Defense Attorney James M. Fawcett.

First but still smiling after her testimony in defense of her husband, Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann is shown fighting her way through the crowd that gathered outside of Bronx Supreme Court. Mrs. Hauptmann testified that her husband escorted her home from the work night of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby was found kidnapped from his crib.

Lait Sees Hauptmann Sure to Lose Fight

New York, Oct. 16.—Bruno Hauptmann's entrance into Justice Hammer's courtroom today was remarkably devoid of external dramatic effect. Court was not yet called, the judge was not on the bench, attaches and courtly-onlookers were chattering and giggling, when suddenly through a door beside the bench seven men in polyest civil clothes shuffled in, one by one, and of the seven, the central one was Hauptmann.

He looked as though he had put in a bad night following a row day. Hauptmann's wife was seated early in the second spectators' row. She wore a shabby brown felt hat and a cheap imitation fur coat over a brown jersey suit. She chuckled nervously and seemed to be "acting."

He did not notice her husband's entrance and he was seated with his back turned to her before she was present, since she was whispering with a woman companion as he was slipped into the courtroom.

Though Justice Hammer on the first day had insisted that Hauptmann's guards sit behind him, today three of them stood, with Hauptmann seated before them and in the middle, Hauptmann noticed the change and turned twistingly again and again and swept the upright deputy sheriffs with his eerie eyes.

"His face was sunken, ash-gray and sinister with his shadow of stubble, the same nondescript shade of brown as the hair on his head, which was by an ornate as punctiliously brushed as it had been on his first court day."

LINDBERGH HITS 'BLACKLIST' OF AIR OFFICIALS

By Associated Press.
Washington, Oct. 15.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh told the President's aviation commission today that the "blacklist" of former air line executives officers constituted one of the "most discouraging factors" in aviation.

His remarks dropped a bomb shell in the hearing room.

Lindbergh said the government should prosecute them if they are guilty of any wrong doing and if they are not, should immediately take them off the "blacklist" so they can join companies having government air mail contracts.

He was referring to the post office department ruling that no officers of the old airlines might retain office under the reorganization which accompanied the enactment of the new air mail law.

The ruling was cancelled.

FLYING BOATS "SAFE"
Giving his views to the board which is forming a definite aviation policy for the government, the first man who made a solo transatlantic flight said that flying boats should be used at the start because of economy, but "primarily because of safety."

Lindbergh explained that the flying boats in case of forced landing could descend without putting his hands in his coat pockets or rubbing his chin.

Lindbergh told the commission he thought government subsidies to airlines would be necessary for a few years longer but that the major transport lines he was supporting.

The "blacklist" to which Lindbergh referred was imposed upon the executives who Postmaster General Farley said had participated in a "spoke conference" to divide up all air mail contracts.

The conference was arranged by former Postmaster-General Brown. Lindbergh said he considered the allocation of transatlantic routes established by Brown the best solution thus far.

"There must be some government regulation of air transport lines to the best of the extent that any line carrying particularly passengers but operating as a transport line should meet certain requirements as to efficiency and personnel," Lindbergh said.

He said, "There should be a permanent aviation board to which all lines should be completely independent of any other form of transportation."

"SLOW DOWN SYSTEM"
His declaration that the system set up by Brown, with three transatlantic lines separately owned and operated, with competition restricted on smaller routes, was preferable in any other, came after Lindbergh said, "There should be no competition."

Lindbergh, after explaining that the same policies governing executives in other industries should be applied to aviation, said that the men on the "blacklist" constituted "one of our oldest and our most able leaders."

"The men in the industry don't know what their status is today," he said.

"The charges should be brought and carried through to the proper courts. If not they should be cleared."

Army Training Urged for Civilian Pilots
Washington, Oct. 15.—Air transport pilots should serve at least two weeks a year in the army air corps, David I. Benckhe, president of the air line pilots' association, declared before the federal aviation commission today.

Such a requirement would coordinate civil and military aviation and be a powerful aid to national defense, he said.

A comprehensive plan for development of aeronautics, civil and military to place America first in both fields, was laid down by Benckhe.

The commission sought his testimony in furtherance of its plan for putting legislation on a stable basis.

Quoting from an editorial in the Hearst papers, entitled "Pilot fly, please," Benckhe said, no better picture of the pilot's view could be presented than that statement from the Chicago Herald and Examiner, reading in part:

"Many of the air line pilots today hold commissions in the organized reserves. All of them should hold such commissions. The federal government should not encourage the air line pilots to join the army or navy, but should require the air transport industry to cooperate with the government in making the relationship between air transport, merchant marine and the Navy."

"To carry out this policy the federal government should continue to maintain the federal airways without cost to the industry."

With proper safeguards to protect the lives of pilots, and with proper support for aviation, this country can stand supreme in the air Benckhe said.

Held for Furnace Murder

Lawrence Clinton Stone, 21-year-old relief worker shown in the Mt. Vernon (N.Y.) police station after his alleged confession of slaying 5-year-old Nancy Gossigan. Police say Stone admitted murdering the little child in the basement of her apartment and then cremating her body in the oil furnace. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

The rapid, unbroken risk of a telephone key. The track is just flashing the winners of the last race. Soon they will pay off. There is plenty of money in the place. Two men walk in.

"Stick 'em up, this will be a nice haul."

Eleven men line up against a wall. The 12th runs down the hall. Two policemen enter. The bandits whip their guns toward them. But the officers fire as they advance. Two gunmen are seriously wounded.

And a Lynn man who happened to be in Lawrence that day knew that the Boston Evening American prints late editions.

ADMITTS GIRL IN FURNACE ALIVE

Mount Vernon, N.Y., Oct. 15 (AP).—Lawrence Stone, 21-year-old relief worker, who was held for the slaying of 5-year-old Nancy Gossigan, was alive when he threw her into an apartment house furnace, District Attorney Frank H. Conyns says, but he denies realizing that the huge oil burner was in use.

Announcing that Stone had confessed, Michael J. Silverstein of the Mount Vernon police described the girl as one of several disappeared in the statement. "The 26-year-old laborer was quoted as saying the girl fell heavily while playing ball with him and that he, panicked, dumped her in the furnace after she 'turned blue'."

Dubord Gains 397 in Maine Recount

Augusta, Me., Oct. 15.—The recount of the Maine senatorial election, approximately one third completed, showed a gain of 397 votes for F. Harold Dubord, Democrat, over Senator Frederick Hale.

In the election, Hale won by 1041 and if the rate at which the recount has reduced that margin, the result may reverse the election.

have borrowed its hundreds of millions to be granted to all borrowers wherever possible. Those that borrowed may not off the date of payment by five years.

This is a big help to the borrowers, undoubtedly, and postpone the bad news for five years, in case any borrowers can't pay ever. That is found to happen in certain instances, but the loss will properly be charged to "national recovery."

A nation that can afford to lend ten millions of dollars to foreign nations, engaged in cutting each other's throats, never getting any of it back, can afford to lose a few hundred millions to its own citizens in an effort to overcome depression.

Farmers in various places, particularly the West, find energy ways of expressing their opinions.

In the Imperial Valley they disposed, with amazing energy, of men whom they called "agitators."

Now in Paradise Valley, Arizona, five hundred farmers arrange an angry public demonstration, hang and burn in effigy, Governor McSweeney of Arizona and Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior. This, to express anger at the failure of Secretary Ickes to approve an irrigation loan that would have brought water to Paradise Valley.

ASSASSIN'S AID BARES KILLING OF SERB KING

By Associated Press

Melun, France, Oct. 16 (AP).—The Surete Nationale announced today that Miro Kralj, alias Sylvester Maly, alias Chelny, had confessed he was sent to Marseilles with "Petra Kalem" to assassinate King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

"Kalem," whose real name was Vlada Georgijev, a Macedonian revolutionary leader, had actually killed the king but the authorities said Kralj told them he fled before the assassination because he feared he would injure other persons in the attempt to take the king's life.

In broken German, Kralj told the Associated Press he had been in Marseilles.

"I am a Croat," declared Kralj. "What I did and what I wanted to do were for Croatian liberty."

The Surete said that Kralj called Egon Kvaternik, who directed the assassination, the "delegate" of the Yugoslavian secret society Ustashi.

Two bombs and an automatic pistol were found in the hotel room Kralj occupied in Aix-en-Provence and they were identical with those found in the possession of Georgijev after the assassination, police reported.

They were hidden between the quilts and the mattress of the bed Kralj occupied in the hotel.

Thousands Mourn at Bier of Alexander

By Associated Press

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 16.—In the cold, marble hall of the Royal Palace, where King Alexander Obrenovich died, thousands of people gathered today to pay tribute to the fallen monarch.

Priests chanted prayers in the dim cathedral light. On the lid of his coffin was the king's gold crown and sword.

Thousands of Yugoslavs with bowed heads filed past.

The lines of people waiting outside to pay homage extended for miles. Many carried flowers, lighted candles, rosaries, and prayer books.

The young king, young Peter II, his mother, Queen Marie, and her mother, the Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, were the first to enter the palace this morning.

The Dowager Queen led as if on the edge of collapse.

After praying beside the coffin for some minutes with tears running down their faces, they returned to Peter's new estate on the heights beside the Danube.

The members of the regency, including Prince Paul, the cabinet, and other high dignitaries of state, church and civil life, filed past Alexander's coffin. Each made the sign of the cross and offered brief prayers.

The Duke of Kent, representing the King of England, arrived here today.

King Carol Goes to Alexander Funeral

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 16 (AP).—King Carol is on his way to Belgrade today to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

King Alexander of Yugoslavia, put his subjects, with a few exceptions, did not know it. By government order, the newspapers were forbidden to mention the fact that the king was absent.

More Workers Quit Fish Strike

More desertions came today in the ranks of the striking fishermen and fish handlers, when another batch of 35 men sought their old jobs back, and got them.

Yesterday marked the first break in the strikers' ranks when 25 men returned to work. Last night they sailed from Boston Fish Pier for the fishing grounds, distributed among five boats.

Today, 31 more boats arrived, bringing in about 500,000 pounds of fish. A total of 30 men on these boats will join the strike as soon as they finish unloading, according to the claim of the union officials.

U. S. Agents Trail Big Alcohol Plant

Two distilling plants with a daily capacity of thousands of gallons of alcohol allegedly sold to drug stores in Greater Boston are being sought by agents of the Alcoholic Beverage Unit of the treasury department, it was learned at the federal building today.

Under cover agents were reported active in checking drug stores supplied with the alcohol. It was hinted the plants are in a city near Boston.

How 'Plumber' Bandits Robbed Brockton of $12,000

Photo-diagram shows route taken by two bandits in their daylight robbery of the payroll from the treasurer's office in Brockton City Hall. Disguised as plumbers, the armed thugs entered the office where girls were sorting the pay envelopes and made off with over $12,000. One of the bandits entered the private office of the treasurer and disarmed Patrolman George A. Perkins, assigned to guard the money. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

stroled casually into Swannson's office and unobtrusively toward the inner door.

At work, there was Max Evelyn Thorneil Higgins, assistant auditor. One "plumber" inquired:

"Where's the leak here?"

She answered:

"There is none."

The response was:

"Someone reported a leak in here."

The "plumbers" left and returned within a minute. One asked:

"Did I leave a tool here?"

Mr. Higgins said he hadn't.

"Well, I left it somewhere and I got to have it for that leak."

He moved to the door leading to the street.

GUN PRESSED TO NECK

They passed through and shut the door behind them. Miss Tripp glanced up and found a gun pressed against her neck. The man behind it warned:

"Keep quiet or I'll give it to you."

The second "plumber" stepped quickly into Treasurer Cheney's office to confront Patrolman Perkins with another gun. Cheney had not arrived in the office and the police man was alone there. He was quickly disarmed and the riot gun leaning against the wall was taken.

The third "plumber" at this point walked into the treasurer's office from the hallway. He covered the three girls while his companion behind the grill scooped the payroll currency into the sack. About $120 in cash was overlooked. The city recently adopted a check system for paying policemen and firemen, or the loot would have totaled about $30,000.

Warning the policeman and the three girls they would be shot if they attempted to follow, the trio of gun-bearing "plumbers" stepped quickly from the office, raced down the hall and the steps at the School street entrance and leaped into their car.

Miss Doane stepped on a button sounding an automatic alarm.

Patrolman Perkins dashed after the trio in futile pursuit and two girls employees of the city clerk's office, across the hall, telephoned police headquarters across the street.

As the bandit car roared away from the curb it collided with the rear of a sedan just being parked by Roy Hill of Lombard street,

Waltham. His sedan was damaged and he was bruised.

POLICE CHECK SPEER CLUES

Northfield, Oct. 16.—One of the state detectives investigating the murder of Dr. E. J. Sullivan, who was shot to death on his way to Riverdale, Ct. today to confer with Mrs. Charles Wallis Spear, widow of the slain headmaster. The visit will be followed by one to New York where the investigator will then talk to Dr. Henry Hunter Wallis, Mrs. Spear's father.

Authorities believe that Mrs. Spear, who has co-operated closely with them, may be able to shed light on some personal data of Dr. Sullivan that they have sought for the last few days.

Two lines of investigation under pursuit for the past many hours were completed today.

The first was the survey of 100 sworn statements taken during the course of the murder probe.

The second was emptying of the 130-yard pipeline ditch that runs along the drive near the former Spear cottage.

THERE IS NO DOUBT about it—"Men in White" is an impressive and thoroughly enjoyable play—so thought the ultra-chic and the completely un-chic audience which attended the opening night, a theatrically dressed Boston crowd.

This play as you know, is being presented by The Group Theater, and others, and Mrs. Roland Hopkins feels assured of the success of this venture, among others. Whatever we may think about the matter, we congratulate Mrs. Hopkins and her group for bringing this play to Boston. . . . maybe it would have come anyway, we do not know. . . . we DO know that whether or not you have joined the theater group sponsors you should see this inspiring play. Good plays come all too seldom and this is one very much of this era. . . .

As the shiny limousines drew up in front of the Majestic Theater last evening, out stepped a large number of our social bet in evening finery. . . . there was no attempt at the demitasse, Boston is definitely full evening dress or sports. . . .

Black Velvet Gown

AMONG THE ORCHIDACEOUS (by the way shoulder corsages are definitely OUT in black velvet, Mrs. James J. Phelan in black velvet accompanied by her daughter, Miss Phelan, in the new violet blue of the day. . . .

Mrs. Roland Hopkins chose a jade green velvet and corsage of white gardenias. . . . she made a speech about the group theater between the acts, thanking the friends of the movement for coming. They should have thanked Mrs. Hopkins for working to bring "Men in White" here with the excellent original cast, if we are right. . . .

Miss Rebekah Hobbs was among the ultra-chic in black satin with tangerine-red capelet which formed a scarf.

PRISCILLA PHELAN and other things and was very smart indeed with her dark tresses. . . . we glimpsed her enterprising mother, Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, in a sheer Chantilly lace.

A very elegant box party included Mr. and Mrs. William P. Everts, Mrs. Everts, one of our most beautiful young matrons who is presenting an equally beautiful debutante daughter this winter. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hawkrig and Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Baker. Mrs. Everts wore the so popular black evening gown under an ermine wrap and the other two ladies also chose black in different fabrics. . . . in fact, almost all of the Ladies of the Evening were in black. There is nothing we can do about it. . . . BLACK is definitely chic for every moment of the day or night. . . .

Trimmed With Snowy Ermine

FRAGILE CHANTILLY OF THAT has graced Mrs. Clement Houghton at the sat with a handsome Favoured One. . . . Mr. Matthew John Whitall's black was velvet trimmed with snowy ermine, very fetching. . . . Mrs. Edward Donnelly's black was relieved with a scarlet velvet scarf and cloak with huge white fox collar. . . . Mrs. Carl Dreyfus draped her fair neckline with turquoise blue and a handsome jewel. . . . but her gown was black. Mrs. Willard Emory was squired by her handsome husband and her gown was of black satin topped with ermine coat with sable collar. . . .

Among the greens was Mrs. Arthur Roche in a jade velvet and Mrs. Walter I. Badger's Titian tresses were set off by that exquisite shade. . . . she wore the lavender orchids of the Good Old Days.

Mrs. Malcolm B. French was in sapphire blue with a white and silver lace evening wrap, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William Coburn.

Veteran First-Nighters

IN FLOWERED TAFFETA, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt presented herself. Mrs. William Duncleele selected a flowered mandarin coat for her first night. . . . both are veteran first-nighters.

A charming Fair Thing was Mrs. John A. Mackay, daughter of Mrs. Hopkins, in black with white fur cloak and gardenias. . . . and we saw Mrs. Talbot Chase in black with Spanish Rose shoulder decoration and tulle. . . . Tiaras are out, we hear, but we still like them. We shall wear ours regardless. . . . Mrs. Julian Leonard looked smart and Mrs. Reeve Chipman was among the best-dressed.

Seen at the Coconut Grove on Sunday Evening at Nine was Mr. and Mrs. James W. Patterson, Mrs. Patterson lovely in green velvet with diamante motifs and lame evening wrap.

Feature at Famous Green Ball

A FEATURE OF THE GREEN BALL of Art and Fashion to be held in New York on October 23 will be Le Casino Vert, a real Continental "boite de nuit" with a special decorative setting by Edward Paul England, 34, which he has brought from his recent "Bal Etrole" at the Hotel George V in Paris.

The color motif of the ball will be carried out by a system which will flood the crystal chandeliers and mirrored walls with a green-blue light. . . . silver chairs with green velvet cushions will be at the tables. . . . the ringed tables will be covered with silver to reflect the light and the other tables will be covered with green transparent stuff. The effect you can imagine of the green, silver and white gowns worn by the guests. . . .

Among the entertainers will be Mrs. Eliza Strang, Venus star, and the internationally known dancers, Fowler and Tamara.

At 9 o'clock dancing and games. . . . at 11 tables of famous paintings re-created in living pictures by New York society leaders. There will be a modern fashion show especially designed for the Green ball by the leading American and French couturiers. . . . at midnight there will be supper and entertainment and general dancing. At 2 o'clock Le Casino Vert opens for games, dancing and. . . a good time.

PITT-MESOTA GAME MAY DECIDE U. S. TITLE, SAYS LITTLE

POND INNOCENT VICTIM OF STIFF SCHEDULE

By Bill Grimes

Confronted by the toughest schedule any Yale team ever tackled, Head Coach "Ducky" Pond has a real assignment on his hands to maneuver the Yells to an even break this season.

After the close of the last campaign, Yale voted for a New Deal in football. It was decided to clean house, as far as the varsity coaching corps was concerned, and "Ducky" Pond was chosen as the one coach who had enough stuff on the ball to bring the Yells back into the football limelight.

Judging from the schedule, the players that had Yale had some reason to believe that there would be some objection to the radical change they wished to make in the coaching system.

It is unbelievable that Yale contracted to meet Columbia, Penn, Brown, Army, Dartmouth, Georgia, Princeton and Harvard, after declining to tender the berth to "Ducky" Pond.

They might have been gunning for someone, but he was not Pond, who is now a victim of circumstances.

PLAYING SMART FOOTBALL

Pond is the new system, Yale will be a real feat to shift from the old to the new system and get results in one season.

Because of the schedule handed him, Pond cannot afford to point to any game other than the one at Harvard, his most recent triumph.

Yale has yet to display any great football but it has proved the satisfaction of the fans that it is capable of playing smart football.

Yale's record is the spearhead of the attack. He featured in the Columbia game, and was easily the best all-around player.

Then, in the game at St. Louis, he stepped into prominence in the third game by kicking 15 yards for the first Yale touchdown. Then, in the game at Yale, he kicked 15 yards for the first Yale touchdown.

Air-Minded Arlington Aces Test Fumble Technique

Head Coach, Columbia University (caption, left, at General Avenue, New York, Oct. 10—University of Pittsburgh has convinced all followers of football, by easily defeating Southern California, that it will be one of the leading teams, if not the outstanding team, of the country, by the end of the season.

But was a driving, hitting team Saturday. Its offensive drive showed that Coach Jack Rutherford had devoted time to perfection of detail. Tackling and blocking was the hitting with the head and shoulders variety, with leg drive behind it.

Offensive was well executed, and panned was thrown into confusion by the running attack in such a manner as to keep the secondary of Southern California passing as to whether they should close up to stop the powerful running of Weinstein and Weissenguth.

But demonstrated the possibility of what kicking can do as an offensive weapon. It was the only way of any sort to gain a good bit of ground when they had an excellent kicker at their disposal.

PENN WILL GET GOING

In the early part of the game the Blue players hit Yale's 30-yard line in the Trojan game, and the Blue players showed a great deal of promise and showed development to be a very sturdy eleven during the latter part of the game.

It takes a few games to acquire the team and confidence but Yale's eleven showed a great deal of promise and showed development to be a very sturdy eleven during the latter part of the game.

Nothing could have been better for the Nebraska, which is comparatively a young eleven, than to win over Iowa after losing to Minnesota last week.

Colgate and Army showed tremendous power in the last game in which they won their games last week. The latter team, which was defeated by Army, showed a great deal of promise and showed development to be a very sturdy eleven during the latter part of the game.

Pat Rooney, a trainer for various schools, was at Narragansett, and dropped dead just before the start of the last race on Monday. Physicians declared him to be a victim of heart failure. His home was in Pittsburg, and a sister lives in California. The victim had a $3 ticket on Butler Bros. he had shot in the last race of the day, in his pocket when he died. He was about 35 years old.

Joekey George, who was thrown and badly shaken up when riding exercise early Saturday, will be back in the saddle again on Thursday. His engagement will be made by Agent Dave Brown, who is not to be confused with the well known sports writer of the same name.

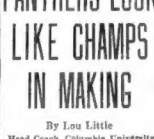

Bernie Felt, who has been compelled to take a few days off to look up a bad case of boils, will return to the saddle today.

The Brown-Yale game will offer an opportunity to compare the relative strength of Harvard and the Yale team. The game will be a test of the Yale team's ability to win over Harvard, which is a very strong team.
